E

(And you still have to write your 2nd E and L)

Romantic love is beneficial for teenagers because it promotes high self-esteem and selfless behavior.

*When in love, an individual will have a higher image of herself. For example, in the novel The Fault in our Stars, the protagonist Hazel falls head over heels for a boy. Before this, she had no reason to live and was depressed. Because she fell in love, she learned to take care of herself, working at beating cancer and bringing purpose to her life. Had she found this adoration for another human being, she may have continued down a depressing spiral. Her openness to love gave her value, and her life improved because of it.*
